

Family Practice Clinic adds member to faculty

Dr. L. James Wilson, 57, has joined the Family Practice Clinic, 807 S. Farwell St., as a full-time faculty member.

He previously practiced privately at Rushford, Minn.

The Family Practice Clinic is a program of the University of Wisconsin Medical School jointly supported by the local medical community, including Sacred Heart and Luther hospitals.

The program provides recent medical school graduates with a three-year residency program designed to train them to become family doctors, especially in rural Wisconsin areas.

According to clinic director Dr. Patrick Connerly, 75 percent of the family practice graduates remain in Wisconsin, and most of those practice in rural areas.

L. James Wilson

Wilson will be a faculty professor to assist residents, and a physician and administrator.